1st International Conference On Nanoscopy

ARE YOU READY TO GO BEYOND THE DIFFRACTION LIMIT?

TAKING PLACE FROM June 07-10, 2016

The Conference

Super-resolution imaging methods now can provide spatial resolution that is well below the diffraction limit approaching virtually molecular resolution. They can be applied to biological samples and provide new and exciting views on the structural organization of cells and the dynamics of biomolecular assemblies on wide timescales. These revolutionary developments come with novel requirements for fluorescent probes, labeling techniques, and data interpretation strategies. Researchers from across the scientific spectrum are involved in designing improved tools and solving previously intractable problems using super-resolution techniques.

We invite you to attend the '1st International Conference On Nanoscopy 2016', which will uniquely focus exclusively on this topic. Held in Basel, Switzerland 7-10 June 2016, it will bring together an international group of experts to discuss the latest advances and future directions in the field.

Markus Sauer
Conference Chair, University of Würzburg, Germany

Confirmed Speakers

Eric Betzig ^{2014 Nobel laureate} (USA)	Jonas Ries (Germany)
Markus Sauer (Germany)	Christian Eggeling (UK)
Rainer Heintzmann (Germany)	Thomas Huser (Germany)
Erik Manders (The Netherlands)	Ilaria Testa (Sweden)
Hari Shroff (USA)	Martin Booth (UK)
Jörg Bewersdorf (USA)	Oliver Biehlmaier (Switzerland)
Suliana Manley (Switzerland)	Katrin Willig (Germany)
Lothar Schermelleh (UK)	Adriaan Houtsmuller (The Netherlands)
Sjoerd Stallinga (The Netherlands)	Edoardo Charbon (The Netherlands)
Melike Lakadamyali (Spain)

+ 15 speaking opportunities for participants

Organizing Committee

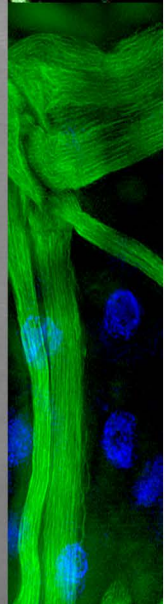

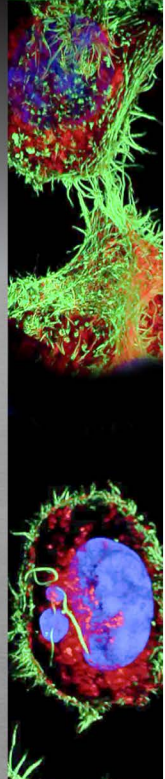

Oliver Biehlmaier (Switzerland)
Henning Stahlberg (Switzerland)
Gregor Drummen (Germany)
